L1: KT1: Geography of the Middle East

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- ☐ Understand how the collapse of the Ottoman Empire after WW1 and the secret Sykes-Picot Agreement (1916) created artificial borders and European mandates in the Middle East.
- ☐ Examine conflicting British wartime promises: the McMahon-Hussein Correspondence (1915) versus the Balfour Declaration (1917).
- ☐ Define and contrast the core historical ideologies of Zionism and Arab Nationalism.
- ☐ Identify the strategic geography of the region, including vital maritime chokepoints (Suez Canal, Straits of Tiran) and contested territories (West Bank, Gaza Strip, Golan Heights, Sinai Peninsula).

Sykes-Picot Agreement | Mandate | Balfour Declaration | Zionism | Arab Nationalism |
Chokepoint | Contested Territory

Q1. Explain why the Sykes-Picot Agreement and League of Nations mandates created artificial borders in the Middle East.

Q2. Explain the fundamental contradiction between the McMahon-Hussein Correspondence and the Balfour Declaration.

Q3. Why were the Golan Heights and the Straits of Tiran of supreme strategic importance in the Arab-Israeli wars?

Map Task: The Geopolitical Landscape

Understanding the geography of the Middle East is the essential first step to understanding its history. The borders of the modern Middle East were largely drawn by Britain and France following the collapse of the Ottoman Empire at the end of the First World War. These artificially imposed borders laid the groundwork for decades of instability.

At the heart of the conflict are several highly contested regions: the Gaza Strip, the West Bank, the Golan Heights, and the Sinai Peninsula. Additionally, control over strategic waterways—like the Suez Canal, the Straits of Tiran, and the River Jordan—has repeatedly triggered military escalation.

Pair & Share Activity

Q4. Prompt: Discuss with your partner: Why is the geography of the Middle East so geopolitically important?

Think: Spend 1 minute quietly considering the question and forming your own opinion.

Historian's Corner: The Debate over Plan Dalet

Historians sharply disagree on the nature of Plan D. Traditional Israeli historians argue it was a purely defensive necessity to secure besieged Jewish settlements before the Arab armies invaded. However, 'New Historians' like Ilan Pappé argue the text of Plan D proves it was a deliberate blueprint for the systematic ethnic cleansing of Palestinian Arabs from the future Jewish state.

Q12. How does Pappé's interpretation of Plan Dalet fundamentally change our understanding of the Palestinian refugee crisis?
