GCSE Exam Practice

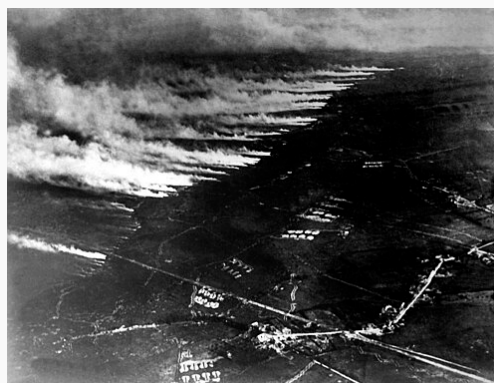

Source A

A photograph taken by official war photographer Frank Hurley showing Australian soldiers walking along a duckboard track through the shattered landscape of Chateau Wood during the Battle of Passchendaele, 1917.

Source B

An aerial photograph showing clouds of poison gas rolling across the battlefield during a chemical attack on the Western Front.

Provenance Scaffolding:

Source A was taken by an official photographer known for dramatic compositions; does this limit its usefulness or perfectly capture the reality of the mud? Source B is an aerial photograph of a gas attack; what makes this detached, wide-angle view of the battlefield useful for understanding the scale of chemical warfare?

Q1. 1 (a). How useful are Sources A and B for an enquiry into the difficult conditions faced by the medical services at Passchendaele and Ypres? Explain your answer, using Sources A and B and your knowledge of the historical context.

GCSE Exam Practice

Source A

A photograph showing the devastating impact of artillery fire and mud on the landscape during the Battle of Passchendaele, 1917.

Source B

A photograph of soldiers from the Cheshire Regiment occupying a captured German trench, 1916.

Image: IWM (Q 3990)

Soldiers of 'A' Company, 11th Battalion, the Cheshire Regiment, occupy a captured German trench at Ovillers-la-Boisselle on the Somme.

Provenance Scaffolding:

Source A is an official photograph documenting the severe mud and destroyed landscape; what can it tell us about the conditions soldiers had to fight in? Source B shows men resting in a captured trench; what does this reveal about the realities of trench occupation?

Q2. 1 (a). How useful are Sources A and B for an enquiry into the physical conditions of the landscape and trench warfare on the Western Front? Explain your answer, using Sources A and B and your knowledge of the historical context.
